Dear Mr. Cline:

STATINTL

STATINTL

The seminar in which [REDACTED] participated as panel members at the Industrial College of the Armed Forces on 21 March proved to be one of the most stimulating sessions of the school year.

The carefully prepared introductory remarks were perfect academically since they supplemented so nicely the curriculum to which our students previously had been exposed during our current study of "Economic Capability for International Conflict." But more importantly, these remarks created respect, interest, and a spontaneity of questioners who were just as numerous at the close of the session as at the beginning.

We thoroughly enjoyed the visit of your personnel and considered the seminar extremely beneficial. Please accept our appreciation for the valuable contribution to our program and extend to the four participants our thoughts that their performance was outstanding in every respect.

Sincerely,

T.R. Stoughton
